Saves time in medicolegal report preparation

By Bak Jin-sing

This book succinctly reviews and summarises the literature relating to prognosis in trauma - for example the likelihood of osteonecrosis of the femoral head after different types of femoral neck fracture.

It is a huge time saver.

The new edition is larger than the previous edition - which was also an excellent book - and it is definitely worth updating to this edition - mostly for more up-to-date references, but also for the expanded overall information.

It is actually quite an interesting read for day to day patient management, even if one is not preparing a legal report.
